

Visit to the Bookaroo festival

“Bookaroo Festival is being held at the picturesque and expansive lawns of Indira Gandhi National Centre for the Arts (IGNCA) on 1st and 2nd December 2018.”

The children were very excited to hear the news while the circular was being read out. The enthusiasm was so infectious that the junior section teachers along with Nidhi maám decided to visit the festival.

It was indeed refreshing to be a part of the festival which is a ticket to the world of books. The teachers divided themselves into groups and went around the various venues absorbing every minute detail. The story tellers were entertaining the children with unique narration styles. Craft corner was houseful with a number of children eager to try out new craft work.

The Doodle wall was a great platform for children to express their ideas...

We quickly glanced through the latest books available and were happy to see what they had to offer to our students.

The story telling sessions won many young hearts present there. “My favourite character” illustrated on rocks was a visual treat to all of us..

Having explored day 1 of Bookaroo festival we quickly glanced through the next day's itinerary and were happy to see what was in store for our kids..

A Bookaroo selfie..

Having explored Bookaroo we are now looking forward to hear what our students bring into the classroom .. !!
